cious stones can be gathered at pleasure? or an Arcadia, where nature is so bountiful as not to need the aid of man, and fruits and vegetables of every desirable description spontaneously spring

There can be but one answer to these questions, and that answer show conclusively the spirit and intent of this miscalled and pretended spirt and intent of this miscarded and pretended emigration. It is an anti-slavery movement. As such, it was organized and put in motion by an anti-slavery legislature; as such, the organized army was equipped in Massachusetts and trans-ported to Kansas; and as such it was met there and defeated.

If further illustration were needed of the illegality of these movements upon Kansas, we might extend our observations to the probable reception of similar movements upon a State. If the Mas-sachusetts legislature, or that of any other State, have the right to send an army of abolitionists into Kansas, they have the same right to transport them to Missouri. We are not apprised of any provisions in the constitutions or laws of the States which, in this respect, distinguish their condition from that of a Territory. We have no laws, and we presume no slaveholding State has, which forbid the emigration of non-slaveholders. Such laws, if passed, would clearly conflict with the Federal Constitution. The outhern and southwestern slaveholding States southern and southwestern stavenothing States are as open to emigration from non-slaveholding States as Kansas. They differ only in the price of land and the density of population. Let us suppose, then, that Massachusetts should turn her attention to Texas, and should ascertain that the population of that State was nearly divided between those who favored and those who opposed slavery, and that one thousand votes would turn the scale in favor of emancipation, and, acting in accordance with her world-wide philanthropy, she should resolve to transport the thousand voters necessary to abolish slavery in Texas; how would such a movement be received there? Or threverse the proposition let it be supposed Or, to reverse the proposition, let it be suppose that South Carolina, with her large slaveholdin population, should undertake to transport a thou-sand slaveholders to Delaware, with the view to turn the scale in that State, now understood to be rapidly passing over to the list of free States, would the gallant sons of that ancient State, small as she is territorially, submit to such interference? Now, the institutions of Kansas are as much fixed, and as solemnly guarantied by statements. of Kansas Territory may be abrogated by succeeding legislatures; but so, also, may the laws, and even the constitutions, of Texas and Delaware. Kansas only differs from their condition in her limited resources, her small population, and her large amount of marketable lands. There is no difference in principle between the cases and her large amount of marketable lands. There is no difference in principle between the cases supposed; if justifiable and legal in the one, it is equally so in the otner. They differ only in point of practicability and expediency; the one would be an outrage, easily perceived, promptly met, and speedily repelled; the other is disguised under the forms of emigration, and meets with no populous and organized community to resent it. We are apprised that it is said that the Kansas legislature were elected by fraud, and constisas legislature were elected by fraud, and consti-tute no fair representation of the opinions of the people of the Territory. This is evidently the excuse of the losing party, to stimulate renewed efforts among their friends at home; but even this is refuted by the record. The territorial governor of Kansas, a gentleman not suspected of or charged with partiality to slavery or to its advocates, has solemnly certified, under his official seal, that the statement is false; that a large majority of the legislature were duly and legally elected. Even in the districts where Governor

Receder set aside the elections for illegality the subsequent returns of the special elections order-ed by him produced the same result, except in a single district. There is, then, no pretext left; and it is apparent that, to send an army of abolitionists to Kansas to destroy slavery existing there, and recognized by her laws, is no more to be justified on the part of the Massachusetts leg-islature than it would be to send a like force to Missouri with the like purpose. The object might be more easily and safely accomplished in the one case than in the other, but in both cases it is equally repugnant to every principle of in-ternational comity, and likely to prove equally fatal to the harmony and peace of the Union. We conclude, then, that this irruption upon Kansas by Emigrant Aid Societies and Kansas Leagues, under the patronage of the Massachu-setts legislature, is to be regarded in no other light then a new phase of abolitionism, more practical in its aims, and therefore more dangerous, than any form it has yet assumed. We have ous, than any form it has yet assumed. We have shown it to be at variance with the true intent of the act of Congress, by which the Territory was opened to settlement; at variance with the spirit of the constitution of the United States, and with the institutions of the Territory, already recognised by law; totally destructive of that fellow-ship and good feeling which should exist among security, peace, and prosperity of a neighboring | considered a violation of the contract. to this date, and pregnant with the most disas-trous consequences to the harmony and stability of the Union. Thus far its purposes have been defeated; but renewed efforts are threatened. Political conventions at the North and Northwest have declared for the repeal of the Kansas-Nebraska law, and, anticipating a failure in this direction, are stimulating the anti-slavery senti-ment to fresh exertions for abolitionizing Kansas after the Massachusetts fashion. We have discharged our duty in declaring the light in which such demonstrations are viewed here, and our firm belief of the spirit by which they will be met. If civil war and ultimate disunion are desired, a renewal of these efforts will be admirably adapted to such purposes. Missouri has taken her posi-tion in the resolutions adopted by the Lexington convention, and from that position she will not be likely to recede. It is based upon the constitution—upon justice and equality of rights among the States. What she has done, and what she is still prepared to do, is in self-defence and for selfpreservation; and from these duties she will hardly be expected to shrink. With her everything is at stake; the security of a large slave property, the prosperity of her citizens and their exemption from perpetual agitation and border feuds; whilst the emissaries of abolition are pursuing a phantom—an abstraction which, if realized, could add nothing to their possession or happiness, and would be productive of decided injury to the race for whose benefit they profess to labor.

If slavery is an evil, and it is conceded that Congress cannot interfere with it in the States, it is most manifest that its diffusion through a new Territory, where land is valueless and labor productive, tends greatly to ameliorate the condition not interfere with it in the States, it of the slaves. Opposition to the extension of slavery is not, then, founded upon any philanthropic views, or upon any love for the slave. It thropic views, or upon any love for the same is a mere grasp for political power beyond what the constitution of the United States concedes; subject to a separate contract; but bidders may offer for one or more of the classes in the same offer for one or more of the classes in the same of the neivilege is reserved of requirements. ment. And this additional power is not desired for constitutional purposes, for the advancement of the general welfare, or the national reputation. For such purposes the majority in the North is already sufficient, and no future events are likely Samples (not less than one quire) of each kind to diminish it. The slaveholding States are in a minority, but, so far, a minority which has comanswered, and we hope will continue to subserve, the purposes of self-protection. Conservative men from other quarters have come up to the rescue when the rights of the South have been seriously threatened. But it is essential to the purposes of self-preservation that this minority should not be materially weakened; it is essential to the preservation of our present form of govern-ment that the slave States should retain sufficient power to make effectual resistance against outward aggression upon an institution peculiar to them alone. Parchment guarantees, as all history shows, avail nothing against an overwhelm-ing public clamor. The fate of the fugitive-slave law affords an instructive warning on the subject, and shows that the most solemn constitutional obligations will be evaded and scorned where popular prejudice resists their execution. The South must rely on herself for protection, and to this end her strength in the federal government cannot be safely diminished. If indeed it be true, as public men at the North have declared, and political assemblages have en-dorsed, that a determination has been reached in that quarter to refuse admission to any more slave States, there is an end to all argument on the subject. To reject Kansas, or any other Territory, from the Union, simply and solely because slavery is recognized within her limits, would be regarded here, and, we presume, throughout the South and Southwest, as an open repudiation of the Constitution—a distinct and unequivocal step towards a dissolution of the Union. We presume it would be so regarded everywhere, North and South. Taken in connection with the abrogation of that provision of the Constitution which enforces the rights of the owners of slaves in all the States of the Union into which they might escape, which has been effected practically [Intelligencer, Union, and Evening Star, 3taw9w.]

dise-a modern El Dorado, where gold and pre- throughout nearly all the free States, and more formally by solemn legislative enactments in a portion of them, the rejection of Kansas on ac-count of slavery would be disunion in a form of grossest insult to the sixteen slave States now comprehended in the nation. It would be a de-claration that slavery was incompatible with re-publican government, in the face of at least two formal recognitions of its legality, in terms, by the Federal Constitution.

We trust that such counsels have not the rewe trust that such counsels have not the remotest prospect of prevailing in our national legislature, and will not dwell upon the consequence of their adoption. We prefer to anticipate a returning fidelity to national obligations, a faithful adherance to the constitutional guarantees, and the consequent prospect—cheering to the patriot of this and other lands—of a continued and PERPETUAL UNION.

Telegraphic Extortion. When, several weeks ago, the Morse and the House Line Tele graph proprietors, about the same time, impos ingly announced the "rates reduced," we pointed out the falsity of their assertion, and condemned n a firm but respectful tone their combination to extort higher rates of toll than are justified by the demand on that medium of intercommunication. Instead of a reduction, a comparison between the ormer and the present tariff shows a general advance of a hundred to upward of three hundred per cent. on despatches between Washington and New York. We are pleased to see that the newspapers in the last named city, and elsewhere, are now opening their batteries on the extortionists; and trust that the establishment of another line of telegraph, which is promised, will have the effect of "administering a reproof to avarice in the most vailable point, namely, the pocket."

Parodi, the celebrated songstress, will, this vening, give a concert at Carusi's Saloon. It will be truly velcome, as a relief to the general dulness, which usually prevails at this season of the year.

ARRIVAL OF STEAMER WASHINGTON.

Three Days Later from Europe. FALL OF SEBASTOPOL.

SANDY HOOK, Sept. 27 .- 12 m .- The steamer Vashington has arrived, with dates from Southimpton to the 12th inst., being three days later. The Collins steamer Pacific at noon on the 15th was spoken.

The Washington brings the long-promised ews of the fall of Sebastopol, which took place n the 8th instant, after theree days bombardnent and six repulses-one repulse before the Malakoff and five before the Redan. The slaughter was terrific, especially in the French repulses The French had fifteen thousand killed and wounded, and the English about the same number, making a total of 30,000. The Russians evacuated the town after blowing up their defences, and sinking all their ships, and firing the town, leaving nothing but smouldering

Five French Generals were killed, including Gen. Bosquet.

The life of the Emperor of France has again een attempted, and the city of Paris is in great excitement. On the night of the 10th inst. the Emperor's carriage was fired at, the assassin supposing the Emperor was in it. Two pistels were fired, the balls entering the carriage.

The assassin was arrested and his name is Belemare, and, on examination, was found to be a maniac. He is undoubtedly mad. He will not be tried, but be sent to a lunatic hospital. The Emperor was to leave on Tuesday for the camp at St. Amer to review the troops destined for the Crimea. The Fall of Sebastopol. The only accounts received of the fall of Sebas topol are the telegraphic despatches to government from the commanding officers. General Simpson telegraphs, under date of Sept. 9: "Sebastopol is in the hands of the allies. The enemy evacuated the south side after exploding the magazines and setting fire to the town."

A despatch to the French Minister of War says "Karabelnai and the south part of Sebastopol no longer exist. The enemy perceiving our solid occupation, evacuated after blowing up nearly all the defences. The chief honors of the day are due to Generals Bosquet and McMahon."

Plan of the Battle. The plan of battle appears to have been as follows: The place was attacked in four directions. The British troops attempted the storming of the Redan; the French attacked the Malakoff; the extreme right of the French made a division on the little Redan, and a united attack of the English, French, and Sardinians was made on the Central battery. All the attacks were simultaneously, with great spirit and energy; but one which was eminently successful was led by General Bosquet and General McMahon on the Malakoff. Both the Redan and Central Bastion were at times in the hands of the storming parties. So accurately did the guns of the Russians cover these that as soon as the English had gained possession of them it was found impossible to hold Joyous Receipt of the News.

The intelligence of the fall of Sebastopol was received in London and the provincial cities with the most extravagant demonstrations of joy. At the theatres and places of public amusement the fact was officially announced, when the bands at by the Washington road, connect with this train by steamboat at Alexandria, and can breakfast on each place struck up the national anthems of the boat. The connection with Baltimore by this route is certain, and the trip pleasant and expedi

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE, D. C. THE next session of this Institution will com-mence on Monday, the 3d of September, The Preparatory Department and Collegiate course are both conducted by able and experi-enced Professors, who devote themselves to the oral and intellectual advancement of those con moral and intellectual advancement of those confided to their care. A large and spacious building has just been completed to be used exclusively for the accommodation of the younger students. Their dormitory, play-grounds, study-hall, class-rooms, &c., will be entirely distinct from those of rooms, &c., will be entirely distinct from those of the other students, and officers especially assigned will attend them in their pastimes and preside over their studies. A complete separation will thus be effected between the younger and older students, the advantages of which must be apparent to all those who have the least experience in the education of youth.

The Observatory of the College, its extensive Philosophical apparatus, rich and varied Libraries, and Cabinet of Minerals, Geological Specimens and Shells, afford to the students of this Institution advantages rarely to be met with.

not be neglected.

Pension, Bounty Land, Patent, and Public Land Laws.

He has nearly ready for gratuitous distribution among his business Correspondents, (and those who may become such,) a neat pamphlet containing a synopsis of the existing Pension, Bounty Land, Patent, and Public Land Laws, down to the end of the late Congress, including the Bounty Land Act of 3d March, 1855.

Hounty Land Act of 3d March, 1855, under which all who have heretofore received less than 160 acres are now entitled to additional land; said Act grants also 160 acres to all Officers, Non-commissioned Officers, Chaplains, Soldiers, Wagon-masters, Teamsters, and friendly Indians, of the Army, including State Troops, Volunteers, and Militia—and all Officers. Seamen, Ordinary Seamen, Marines, Clerks, and Landsmen, of the Navy, not heretofore provided for who have Navy, not heretofore provided for, who have served not less than fourteen days (unless in battle) at any period since 1776; and to the widows and minor children of all such persons entitled, and deceased.

This pamphlet contains "Forms of Application" more full and complete than any elsewhere to be found; adapted to the wants of every class of Claimants under the Act, with copious decisions and instructions of the Department, and practical suggestions as to the course to be pursued in suspended or rejected cases.

Correspondents who prepare and forward cases for management by this Agency will be dealt with
